1 Purpose and confidential information The parties may share non-public information to discuss, evaluate and, if separately agreed, deliver cybersecurity, AI or technology services. Confidential Information means information marked confidential or reasonably understood to be confidential, including business plans, pricing, customer data, source code, system details, vulnerabilities and security reports, whether shared orally, visually or in writing.

2 Protection and permitted use Each receiving party will use Confidential Information only for the purpose above, apply reasonable care and at least the care it uses for its own similar information, and share it only with personnel and professional advisers who need it and are bound by confidentiality duties. It is responsible for their compliance. Information must not be uploaded to an external AI service without the disclosing party's written consent.

3 Exclusions and required disclosures These duties do not cover information the recipient can show was already lawfully known without restriction, becomes public without breach, is independently developed without using it, or is lawfully received without restriction from another source. Legally required disclosures are limited to what is necessary, with prior notice where lawful and practicable. Nothing restricts disclosures protected by law, including lawful reporting to authorities.

4 Incidents and return of information The recipient will promptly notify the disclosing party of unauthorized access, use or disclosure and reasonably cooperate to limit harm. On written request or termination, it will return or delete the information, except records required by law and routine backups retained until normal deletion. Retained information remains protected and may not be used for another purpose.

5 Duration This agreement covers disclosures for two years from the effective date. Either party may end future disclosures by written notice. Confidentiality duties continue for three years after expiry or termination; trade secrets remain protected for as long as they qualify under applicable law.

6 Rights and responsibilities Each party keeps its intellectual property. Information is supplied without a warranty of accuracy or completeness, subject to applicable law. This agreement grants no testing or system-access permission and creates no obligation to buy or provide services. Any required data processing agreement must be agreed separately. Each party may seek remedies available under applicable law.

7 General terms Estonian law governs this agreement. Disputes fall within the exclusive jurisdiction of Harju County Court, Estonia, subject to mandatory law and either party's right to seek urgent interim relief from a competent court. Changes require written agreement. Notices may be emailed to the notice emails stated above with evidence of delivery. Electronic signatures and counterparts are permitted.
